“ Rest in peace dad, we all miss you and can't believe you are gone! I promise you I will take great care of mom while you are gone and make sure she's ok and never alone unless she wants to be. I promise you I will continue to stay strong and help as much as I can. I'm going to miss staying home from work to spend the day with you and listen to pandora radio on our mobile devises. I'm proolly the only girl in the world to sit through your horrible music for so many hours and vice versa. Not everyday you find a dad to sit snd listen to the song called ride, rap song. You laughed so hard as so did I. Thank you so much for always talk through my problems with me. You never looked down on me or got mad at me for the stupid stuff I said and did when I was younger. No matter how many people may want to refer to me as extended family I know that's not how you saw me or my brothers and that's all that matters. It takes a good man to raise 3 kids basically their whole life with never referring to any of us as her kids or those kids. You are my dad and I will love you and hold you forever in my heart as I will my mom. You both are my parents and I couldn't be happier! I know you were ready to go even though nobody else was! I know how bad you've been feeling and I know you are in a better place. No pain no restrictions on smoking cigarettes or alcohol due to health issues. So have a drink for me my Brett. I love you and I wil never forget you or take for granted the 25 years we've had together. You are a blessing.
