“ I am sorry to all of you for your loss. Times like this is so hard when such a beautiful treasure was given to you for just a tiny moment. Sometime we don't understand why this happens in our life but God must need another angel by his side. Phil was with me for such short time and I question everyday why God took him away. Then I see what has happen to two wonderful parents and wonder why God why. Then I step back and think your son he isn't alone he has joined your family on high. Phil will watch after Jack like his very own. I know he is in the arms of a gentle giant angel known as my Phil . We question our self how can this be but remember God takes the best first because he needs special angels to make things ready for us when he calls us home. So grieve just awhile for little Jack you see God and Phil needed another angel to help them just like Jack. I know as parents how can you say this is so because when you look toward Heaven in the night sky I don't see just one bright star looking down now I see two Phil Bogard and your little Jack. God Bless you both and family alike the comfort you seek is right at your side those Angels I am talking about will leave you a penny once in awhile out of nowhere you will find a penny by your side reminding you that you are not alone because Phil and Jack have left them there for you to remind you they are by your side. Take care all of you and remember someday you will see them again with arms opened up wide. Love Grace
